The Villa There are houses that sit within their landscape, and then there is The Point. Positioned on the tip of the Leeward Settlement, where the shoreline curves and the views open on all sides, this eight-bedroom contemporary residence occupies one of the most singular plots on Providenciales — a piece of land that demanded architecture equal to it, and received it.The design is uncompromisingly modern: clean geometry, expansive glazing and an open-plan logic that dissolves the interior into its surroundings.
